Although I have only lived in Gwinnett County for about ten years, I am a native Atlantan. After working the first twenty years of my career at a large downtown law firm, I co-founded a small firm in Lawrenceville in 2009.

I have five children and three grandchildren. Thanks in part to a blended family, two of my daughters share the same name, spelled slightly differently. Two of my daughters were born on the same day, but are not twins. My family is overpopulated with lawyers. My mother, sister and wife are all attorneys. Thankfully, none of our children seems interested in adding to that tally.

In my limited spare time, I enjoy golf, history, traveling, and Georgia football. I enjoy all sports and admittedly watch more than I should. I hate to exercise, but I do it anyway on a somewhat regular basis.

I am an Atlanta native and a graduate of Parkview High School and Georgia State University. I live in Loganville with my husband of nearly 21 years, Bill, and our stray cat Tiger. I'm a Senior Paralegal at Merial Limited and have been there for over six years.

Fun for me is politics and UGA football.

I served as a State Director for both the Herman Cain and Mitt Romney campaigns in 2012, and was an Alternate Delegate to the Republican National Convention last summer. In March I was elected to serve as the Chairman of the Gwinnett Republican Party.

I am a UGA season ticket holder and, like most true fans, plan my life around football season. Many think I'm joking when I say that it's rare for me to accept paying or volunteer jobs that compete with UGA football. They soon realize, I never joke about UGA football.

My legacy of education goes back several generations. My grandfather and father were teachers. After immigrating from Cuba as a teenager, my father became the Head of Foreign Language at Auburn University. I began elementary school as a non-English speaker and had to overcome many challenges. My experiences as a student and my parents' value of education led me to pursue a career in education. I began teaching in a diverse elementary in Atlanta. My career continued, and I became an assistant principal in Gwinnett County at Louise Radloff Middle School.

I was selected to attend the inaugural Quality Plus Leadership Academy for aspiring principals. In 2008, I was named principal of Craig Elementary. Under my leadership, Craig has been awarded the Bronze and Gold awards from the Governor's Office. I received my Bachelor's degree in Education from Auburn University and Master's and Specialist in Leadership from Georgia State University.
